LODGE NOTES

Hibernians, Elks Officers, at Middletown Convention—500 Elks at Plant Field.

The biennial convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians which closed at Middletown adjourned on Thursday afternoon and its meeting place two years hence will be selected by the state board, made up of the four officers and the state chaplain. Officers elected were: President, John P. Leoney of New Britain; vice president, Andrew W. Conniff of Danbury; secretary, John S. McArthur of New Haven for his sixth term; treasurer, Major E. T. Lyons of Hartford, for his eighth term. The convention recommended to Bishop N. J. J. the name of Father Flannery of Hazardville for state chaplain.

Many resolutions were adopted, some of them at length. In one allusion to the savagery pursued against the trust patriots who have ever shed blood in the name of liberty, with unflinching loyalty. We denounce the wholesale butchery which, forgetful of every human sentiment, unkindly of every lawful convention and needless of objections from every civilized nation done to a tortured and the little band of heroes who loved Erin, to the death and whose only crime was that undying affection. In special way we denounce the indefensible execution of that knight without fear and without reproach—Roger Casement—that for what he offered—the sacrifice of his life—we resolve must be the object of our sympathy and active aid. We demand for which he died is as he would have Erin free among the nations his spirit will not rest content until his soul which we now beseech may be with his God.

Another resolution pledges the order to the work of freeing Ireland, and reasserts loyalty to the United States. Regarding President Wilson the resolution said in part: "To President Woodrow Wilson, and to all the rulers to whom we owe allegiance we tender submission and loyalty, and express a feeling of gratitude for the efforts made to retain our nation uncommitted with the dissensions which divide other people, and we proffer our aid in every legitimate way to secure second the efforts of those who govern us to secure a continuous and peaceful and prosperous to our country." The treasurer's report to the convention of the Hibernians showed that $30,470 had been paid in benefits during the past fourteen years.

The Ladies' auxiliary effected these officers: President, Mrs. Alice R. Mooney, Waterbury; vice president, Mrs. Margaret Murman, Portland; secretary, Miss B. Lester, Bridgeport; treasurer, Mrs. Catherine E. Foley, New Haven.

ELKS.

A good many Elks from Norwich were in the crowd that went to Plant field at New London on Friday afternoon for the big celebration in honor of Commodore Morton F. Plant, which was fittingly topped off by a ninth inning victory for the Planters against Hartford.

All roads led to Plant field, where prior to the opening of the game between Gene McCann's pets and the Charter Oak sweat artists, some thirty 5,000 fans yelled themselves hoarse in honor of Commodore Plant, who made organized baseball in New London a possibility.

Ideal weather, the one essential factor, was bestowed with lavish liberality on Elks' day. There had been dire forebodings that the rain of the past two seasons might be repeated, on which occasions rain spoiled the program, but the fears entertained were groundless.

The response to the Elks' invitation to participate in their portion of the festivities was large and spontaneous. Members from the order for cities all over the state gathered at the home in Washington street at noon for luncheon and an informal reception. Promptly at 2 o'clock the start for Plant field was made.

To the inspiring strains of Hunt's band more than five hundred Elks, friends, on foot and in motor cars, adorned with purple badges and waving purple pennants, proceeded down State street and were reviewed by Mayor Ernest W. Rogers and members of the court of common council. George H. Hayes was marshal of the procession and Exalted Ruler John C. Geary marched at the head of the Elks. Practically every guest of honor who had promised to attend was on hand.

At the parade those who were not provided with automobiles embarked in the Elks' special trolley line for Plant field. At 2:30 all were assembled at the left field entrance, headed by the band, the loyal rosters executed a circle about the field amid the plaudits of the grandstand and bleachers.

Arriving in front of the box occupied by Commodore and Mrs. Plant, a salute was fired by the Hartford band. Mr. Geary presented a beautiful presentation speech, which devolved upon him. With appropriate pride he presented Commodore Plant, a beautiful floral baseball nine feet in circumference, the creation of Fisher, the artist. The ball contained more than 1,000 red and blue stars for stitching. It was inscribed, "To the Commodore, from B. P. O. E. 268, in the top of the American beauty roses."

To Mrs. Plant, Attorney Geary presented a beautiful basket of red roses, the handle decorated with red ribbons and ornamented with butterflies and humming birds. To H. Eugene McCann, Mr. Geary gave a solid gold Elks' card case. All the gifts were from New London lodge of Elks and were graciously acknowledged by their recipients.

Following the presentations the Elks and guests proceeded to the seats which had been reserved for them in the third base bleachers. The band stationed itself in front and began a concert which was continued at intervals through the afternoon. Hearne, a member of the Elks, was selected as New London's mount of appeal. Pop Anderson and other celebrities received ovations when they appeared.

The afternoon and the victory were completely satisfying to the New London Elks and most of their visitors.
